

Please look at the consumer when it comes to satellite radio. We want to see it follow the model of satellite TV where local stations are now available through satellite television in many areas. Give us a choice in what we want to listen to. Our local radio is so poor where I live. They don't play the music that I want to hear, and XM does. Don't let Clear Channel and Cox continue their monopolistic bullying. They should be offering compelling content if they want to keep my ear. I'd prefer to have traffic and weather, and music through XM. Let me keep my XM!
